

www.geobunga.com

4404 Malaai St, Honolulu, Hawaii 96818
P. 808.422.4567 F. 888.990.6363

Calendar Advisory

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Thursday, April 9, 2015

Geobunga Hosts Free Composting Workshops April 18 and May 2

Learn how to create fresh organic matter

WHAT:

Geobunga is pleased to offer its third 2015 Gardening Workshops Series "Water Lilies, Lotus and Marginals."

WHEN/WHERE:

- April 18, 9-10am at Geobunga Windward - 41-732 Kakaina St. Waimanalo, HI 96795
- May 2, 9-10am at Geobunga Salt Lake - 4404 Malaai St. Honolulu, HI 96818 (across from Target)

REGISTER:

Space is limited to 50 seats! Register at geobunga.com/workshops

DETAILS:

The public is invited to learn how to compost using free, readily available food waste and other organic material from their yards.

"Compost improves soil fertility, soil structure and water-holding capacity," says Geobunga owner Andrew Dedrick. "Anyone with a yard or lanai can do it and the benefits are endless."

The workshop makes it easy for gardeners of all levels to get started.

Geobunga makes it fun, easy and affordable to create beautiful outdoor spaces. Offering unique garden elements from around the world, Geobunga specializes in ceramic pots, stone pavers and benches, decorative rocks and pebbles, fountains, bamboo accents and a large variety of plants. Each visit to Geobunga brings something new to discover, along with the best prices, selection and service in the state. Geobunga offers two convenient locations in Salt Lake and Waimanalo.

Visit www.geobunga.com

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC**

####

MEDIA CONTACTS:

Charles Bohannon, Media Relations; cell: (808) 990-3421, charles@wordful.com